

2009 Prom Updos

Sunday, 15 February 2009

2009 Prom Updos & Hairstyles Fashion Trends & Styles

When you are getting ready for your prom, you are not just getting ready for a fancy night out. No, the prom preparations are many and extensive, because this is a day that you will remember for the rest of your life. For a young woman, the prom is an exciting time, because a makeover will go a long way towards making you feel like the most amazing woman in the world. As important as it is to have the perfect, most eye-popping dress, it is important to have the perfect hairstyle that will complement it and turn heads. 2009 prom hairstyles are hotter than they have been in any other year, and this is the time to shine, and to make sure you stand out amongst the crowd. When you are getting ready and planning for the prom, use your favourite celebrities as examples. Pretend you are getting ready for a red carpet event where cameras and adoring fans will capture your look. Use red carpet events and pictures from this year's Academy Awards, Golden Globes, and red hot movie premieres to see potential trends for 2009 prom hairstyles and updos. Very often, celebrity updos will be the best foundation for you to plan how to structure your hair.

Sleek or chic, sloppy or tousled, choppy or textured...where do you want to start? When it comes to 2009 hair updos or 2009 prom hairstyles, anything goes because everything is in season. Strapless dresses look elegant with a very pretty updo, but just as pretty with long luscious waves. Picture your dress on Blake Lively, Miley Cyrus, or Paris Hilton, and see where you want your hair to take you. Waves and long luscious locks are worn by every celebrity this year, and this may be a trend you want to continue. Though celebrity updos are popular on the red carpet, long and wavy is a new concept that is breaking free from tight updos. Look at Leighton Meester from Gossip Girl, or her co-star Blake Lively. Here you will see long luscious waves hitting the red carpet time and time again no matter what kind of dress they are wearing. Another trend in 2009 prom hairstyles is the bohemian look. Here you have the freedom to get a little messy and textured and not give too much care for muss or fuss. Tiny braids woven into your 2009 hair updos have been seen on Lauren Conrad, Whitney Port, and Charlize Theron at the movie premieres and dazzling events. Go bold and get a little messy, but have your stylist weave tiny braids into your chic and sleek chignon or updo. Sleek and straight is an excellent look for 2009 prom hairstyles, whether you are pinning it up into a sleek bun, or keeping it loose and free on your shoulders. Sleek straight hair was a rave on the runways this year, and the trend was followed quickly by the likes of Nicole Richie, Gisele Bundchen, and the always glamorous Kate Hudson. 2009 hair updos with a sleek and combed effect leave for a very elegant and sophisticated look that will look stunning against a black or red strapless gown. And if you have shorter hair and are worried that you won't be able to follow the trends of celebrity updos, worry not. Lovely ladies like Victoria Beckham, Katie Holmes, and Reese Witherspoon have all proven that short hair is more versatile today than ever before. Check out pictures from the New York Metropolitan Costume Institute Gala to see just how short and contemporary cropped locks can look stunning with a beautifully chosen dress. It will not take you long to realize that 2009 prom hairstyles are not only about the 2009 prom updos trend. Finally, the perfect accessory can take a standard hairstyle from your 2009 prom hairstyle selections into something stunning and amazing. Use bejewelled headbands, barrettes, combs, or clips to add a little bit of glitz and glam to your prom 2009 updos or hairstyles. No matter how you choose to wear your hair on this very special night, you can't go wrong. 2009 is all about taking risks, pushing the envelope, and trying contemporary looks that are only seen on the red carpet. When it comes to 2009 prom hairstyles, you are only limited by your imagination. Go for it! ~Ben Anton, 2009